

How Processing Practice impacts on Quality and Quantity

Monday 9th – Tuesday 10th April 2016
Jet Park Airport Hotel &
Simunovich Olive Estate, Auckland

Olives New Zealand is offering a two day seminar on “How Processing Practice impacts on Quality (e.g. Gold medals) and Quantity” in Auckland on Monday 9th – Tuesday 10th April 2016. Early notice now means out of towners can book their flights at best possible rates!

“Processing Practice” will focus on how best practice processing will give you the best quality and quantity of oil from your olives. This course is an absolute must for everyone who grows olives and produces Extra Virgin Olive Oil, as well anyone with an olive press or looking to buy one. How processing practices impact on the quality and quantity of the product produced is a hot topic for everyone in the olive industry. Particularly with anecdotal advice from members being that winning Gold medals is a major differentiator is selling their oil at a reasonable price.

The course will be led by Pablo Canamasas with the first day being a formal course at the Jet Park Hotel and the second day being hands-on at Simunovich Olive Estate, Bombay, South Auckland.

Course Leader - Pablo Canamasas

Pablo Canamasas is among the world’s most knowledgeable experts in olive oil production and quality. He is the oil production technical manager of Australia’s largest olive oil producer, Boundary Bend Limited (owner of Cobram Estate).

Pablo manages Boundary Bend’s oil production and post-harvest oil quality. He is responsible for all matters related to olive oil chemistry and organoleptic quality. He has also been on the company’s taste panel, ensuring that only the best oils are used and that their flavours are consistent from year to year. Pablo has extensive knowledge on how to maximize profitability and quality by adjusting processing variables.

Olives New Zealand is fortunate in being able to bring Pablo to New Zealand for the Processing Practice Course.
